

President's Message

March 2023

Dear Fellow Residents,

We are a couple months in and things seem to be going well. By now we have had a couple events under our belts and there is hope that we will have more. The next event will be St. Patrick's Day pot luck and raffle on March 25.

In order for events to continue to happen, we need volunteers to assist us. You don't need to take over, and fully run an event but any assistance would surely be appreciated. I would really like to have more community input in our events going forward.

I noticed that our card tables were beginning to get a little tired. They have served us well but it just isn't safe to have tables with legs that aren't stable. To that end, we have purchased four new card tables. I'm sure they will be a welcome addition to the clubhouse.

As the year progresses, please let me know if you encounter any of our property that is broken or needs replacing. Even if you are unsure who owns the item, let me know and I will track it down. I would like to get us to a place where all our property is in good working order.

The rain has set us back in delivering flyers. As a result our Membership drive was slightly delayed. However it is off to a good start and is ongoing. Our next big commitment for the year will be a new Directory. It is my hope that we will be getting information out to everyone in the very near future.

OLD BUSINESS

► CLOCK

Nathan Howard has agreed to order a good size clock for the large room in the Clubhouse. It will be installed as soon as it comes in.

► BIRTHDAY CAKE

Sheila Wark spoke to Nathan about the Birthday Cake issue. He is going to bring it up at management's next meeting. Other Park Managers have been asking to reinstate this practice in their parks, so we are not alone. Nathan Howard will follow up with Sheila Wark once a decision has been made by management.

NEW BUSINESS

► UPDATE ON CREDIT UNION

We are in the process of moving our accounts from Keypoint Credit Union to Provident Credit Union. This is being done because Keypoint has essentially moved their services out of our area. We need to go to either Milpitas or Cupertino to do our banking. Provident, being in Sunnyvale (Mathilda and El Camino), is much closer to access. We hope to have this move completed by the end of February.

► CARD TABLES

It has come to our attention that at least three of our card tables are broken. These tables were purchased at Target many years ago. We would like to replace them as soon as possible. Sheila Wark has looked into the cost of replacements. She believes that we should be able to do it for around $50.00 per table. Sheila Wark would like to purchase four tables to replace the old and tired ones that we currently have. A motion to replace the card tables was made by Elizabeth Morrison and seconded by Weizhi Sun. Motion carried.

Comments, questions and additional items invited from the floor -

Elizabeth Morrison asked about the “Walk, Exercise Class” that was at the Clubhouse before COVID. It seemed that it was mostly an exercise class that followed a program on the TV. It seems that most of the people involved in the class have either moved away or no longer participate in that. Elizabeth Morrison was more interested in walking around the park. She was wondering if there was a group who did this. There are quite a few walkers in the park and various names were given to Elizabeth Morrison for her to contact.

Sheila Wark thanked Diane Daley for the treats.

The next Association meeting will be February 28, 2023 at 7:00 pm with a Meet and Greet at 6:45 pm.

There being no further business, a motion to adjourn the meeting was made by Kathy Love and seconded by Eric Hopp. Motion carried.

Meeting was adjourned at 7:34 pm.

CA Cities Rank Among Happiest Places To Live

Ten California cities were among the Top 10 happiest places to live, while 17 were among the Top 50, according to a study by SmartAsset.

https://patch.com/california/fremont/s/iil9c/17-ca-cities-rank-among-happiest-places-to-live-study-shows?utm_term=article-slot-1&utm_source=newsletter-daily&utm_medium=email&utm_campaign=newsletter

ACROSS CALIFORNIA — In some cases, money does lead to happiness. That's according to a 2021 study by researchers at the University of Pennsylvania who found there is a correlation between happiness and income.

However, not all places can offer the same level of happiness, as some cities have better economic opportunities and a better quality of life, according to a study by SmartAsset.

To uncover the happiest places in America, SmartAsset analyzed 164 of the largest U.S. cities across 13 metrics including personal finance, well-being, and quality of life.

The findings showed that 17 California cities ranked among the top 50 happiest places in America, with five in the top 10.

No. 1: Sunnyvale, CA

Well-being and quality of life is where Sunnyvale, California ranks best. The city has the highest percentage of individuals earning $100,000 or more (62.5%), the third-lowest percentage of adults living below the poverty-level (roughly 5%) and the fifth-highest marriage rate (56.8%). Violent crime in the area is also low (No. 9) with roughly 149 violent crimes per 100,000 residents.

No. 4: Fremont, CA

Fremont, California ranks No. 3 for both its high percentage of individuals earning $100,000 or more (55.4%) and its low living costs relative to income (32.17%). The city also ranks No. 2 for both the percentage of adults who live below the poverty-level (4.9%) and its marriage rate (61.6%).

No. 7: Roseville, CA

Living costs in Roseville, California are the fifth-lowest across the study making up about a third of the median household income annually. Just over 38% of the city's population earn $100,000 or more (13th-highest) and less than 6% live below the poverty-level (fourth-lowest). The county in which Roseville is located also has the 15th-lowest number of personal bankruptcy filings study-wide.

(Continue on page 15)

No. 8: San Jose, CA

Roughly 43% of San Jose, California residents earn $100,000 or more (10th-highest) and less than 7.4% live in poverty (eighth-lowest). Additionally, Santa Clara County - where San Jose is located - takes the No. 2 spot for both the percentage of residents reporting poor mental health days (10%) and life expectancy (84.7 years).

No. 9: Santa Clarita, CA

Santa Clarita, California ranks best in the quality of life category, taking the No. 8 spot. Specifically, less than 7% of the city's population live in poverty (sixth-lowest) and roughly 53% of residents are married (10th-highest). The area is also pretty safe, with the seventh-lowest violent crime rate study-wide (roughly 131 crimes per 100,000 residents).

No. 10: Irvine, CA

Irvine, California ranks in the top 10 for both the percentage of individuals earning $100,000 or more (nearly 46%) and living costs as a percent of income (roughly 38%). Irvine also has the No. 1 lowest violent crime rate study-wide (51 crimes for every 100,000 residents). Additionally, the county in which Irvine is located is also No. 10 for both the percentage of residents reporting poor mental health days (11.3) and life expectancy (82.8 years).

Rounding out the study's Top 50 Happiest Cities In America are these 11 California cities:

No. 11 Huntington Beach

No. 14 San Francisco

No. 17 Hayward

No. 21 Glendale

No. 25 Santa Rosa

No. 27 Fullerton

No. 31 San Diego

No. 32 Oakland

Nicolaus Otto

The inventor of the internal combustion engine

<https://www.eastvalleytribune.com>

All Nicolaus Otto wanted to do was make enough money to marry his wife, settle down and begin a career. He was 26 and a seemingly happy young man who was content to sell sugar, rice, coffee or tea while traveling through the countryside of western Germany in the 1850s.

But every inventor has to be drawn by the gravitational pull of curiosity, that moment when fascination tugs at an internal will that, in turn, pulls at wonder.

And Otto, the first inventor of the first alternative to the steam engine, had to wonder what was pulling at him that day when he sat on a park bench in a small German town and watched as smoke billowed out of the chimney of a nearby factory.

“He thought of that image day and night,” wrote Kurt Rathke in his biography of Otto. “He had the wildest plans about the future, all to do with the gas engines and its possibilities.”

The chimney was like a gas engine. The fuel would power the engine. Nicolaus August Otto’s engine would run better than it ever had before.

Born in early June of 1832, Otto’s path to inventor infamy would be an interesting one. He had left school at 16 to work in a grocery store in Holzhausen, Germany. For a few years he had been nothing more than a clerk in Frankfurt. He had given up on everything to be a traveling salesman, earn more money and marry the woman he met at a carnival in Cologne.

But there was that tug.

Otto had a fascination with all things mechanical, forever delving into technical books that talked about the latest mechanical inventions. What he would stumble into was something far greater.

Before he was 30, Otto had read a newspaper story about Frenchman Jean-Joseph Etienne Lenoir, and what was generally known as the first workable combustion engine, dubbed the Lenoir.

In his spare time, Otto would tinker with Lenoir’s formula, eventually modifying it to use ethyl alcohol. And, he saw the chimney.

“He decided that the place of explosion in a gas engine, which he likened to the chimney, should receive a rich fuel mixture,” Rathke wrote.

But his first attempts had mixed results. In 1861 he had patented a two-stroke engine that ran on gasoline. Other inventions failed. But all of this work caught the eye of Eugen Langen, a technician and proprietor of a sugar factory, who took on Otto as a partner.

Otto had been sharing his ideas with Langen during those trips to his shop to buy and sell sugar.

In 1865, from a workshop on Cologne’s Servasgasse Street, the two men established N.A. Otto & Cie, the first engine company in the world and the forerunner of one of the largest companies in the world today, Deutz AG, a manufacturer of air-cooled diesel engines.

(Continues on page 17)

Two years later, the pair were awarded a Gold Medal at the Paris World Exhibition for their two-stroke engine.

Less than 10 years later, through trial and error, fires and misfires, Otto had built the first high-compression, fourstroke engine with an ignition device. It was the first practical alternative to the steam engine and the forerunner to the modern-day automobile engine.

He patented his invention in 1877 and, though he never became directly involved in car manufacturing, his compressed-charge engine marked the beginning of an era of pioneering.

Because of its reliability, efficiency and relative quietness, over the next 10 years more than 30,000 of Otto's engines – called the 'Otto cycle' in his honor – would be sold.

Its impact was immediate. Gottlieb Daimler would use the model and attach it to a bicycle to make the world's first recognized motorcycle. Karl Benz would build his first three-wheel automobile using the engine.

Over time, the Otto engine would be used to power automobiles, motorcycles and motorboats. Also, the diesel engine, invented by Rudolf Diesel, would be based on internal combustion, employing a four-stroke system similar to Otto's.

Nicolaus Otto died at 59, but not before establishing one of the most important landmarks in engine design, inventing what the automotive world would never live without.

And finally earning enough money to marry the girl he could never live without.

Villanelle About Two Bumble Bees Who Love Each Other

Two bumble bees, so small and round,
Their love for each other, pure and sweet,
They buzz and flit about, their sound.
With pollen in their baskets, they're found,
Together, side by side, so fleet,
Two bumble bees, so small and round.
Their love is like a symphony's sound,
A joyous tune that can't be beat,
They buzz and flit about, their sound.
And though they're tiny, they're renowned,
For love that's strong, and can't be beat,
Two bumble bees, so small and round.
In fields of flowers, they do abound,
Their love forever, a joy to greet,
They buzz and flit about, their sound.
Two bumble bees, so small and round,
Their love a sweet and gentle beat.

Be sure to place your recyclables in a container (plastic, paper or reusable container that we will return to you).

Place your containers at the end of your driveway - Not in the street or in the rain gutter.
